\ Apartments for Families at Tel Hashomer

The Sheba Medical Center in Tel Hashomer is one of the biggest hospitals in the Middle East, known globally for its phenomenal children's cancer research. In 2007, a non-profit partner Rachashei Lev opened a unique home within the hospital grounds, offering children and their parents' full accommodation free of charge so that families can live close to the hospital, in comfort and security, while undergoing heart-wrenching treatments for childhood cancer. Having close family support is crucial for children as well as adult patients who are battling intensive treatments.

Sheba Medical Centre also specializes in the treatment and rehabilitation of serious injuries in battle and other environments. (They are so prolific in this, they have sent teams to Ukraine to help set up field hospitals.) The patients who arrive are the most severe and difficult casualties and require prolonged surgeries and long-term rehabilitation.

\ Location

Tel Hashomer is near Ramat Gan, just outside of Tel Aviv.

Apartments for Families of Hospital Patients

\ After Oct 7th

In the first week after the horrific Oct 7th attacks, the hospital is filling quickly with patients with complicated and urgent injuries. They have opened the available family apartments to the families of these patients, who come from across the country, so they can stay with their loved ones while they undergo their treatments. They have already received 11 families and expect many more in the coming weeks. They need to quickly renovate and refresh the 20 apartments, to perhaps even accommodate more than one family at a time. It's not known how long this crisis will continue, and they need to be ready to provide long-term care to patients and their families during this horrible time.

Cost per apartment renovation:
$46,000 (20 available)

Each suite consists of a master's bedroom, a children's room, a living room, kitchen area and a balcony. Renovations include new flooring, electrical, paint, plumbing, replacement of doors and installation of more countertops and sinks.

"Tel Hashomer Hospital was my home for 18 months. With the help of the amazing staff there, I was brought back to life and learned how to do everything from scratch. 17 years later, unfortunately the time has come to give back to the hospital that gave me so much. Today I go there to support our brave wounded, helping them and their families with their rehabilitation process. Israel is going through hard times right now, but we will adapt, we will be stronger, we will win."

- Noam Gershony, who went on to become 2012 Paralympic Gold Medalist after surviving a deadly helicopter crash in the Second Labenon War (2006).
